

Rachel SU • Deputy Director | Market Development & Surveillance Department • Regulation Division | Energy Market Authority

Ms. Rachel Su is a Bachelor of Business (specialising in Applied Economics) graduate from the Nanyang Technological University of Singapore and a holder of a Master of Science Degree in Applied Finance from the Singapore Management University.

She has extensive regulatory experience in respect of the Singapore energy sector. As the Deputy Director of the Market Development and Surveillance Department of the Energy Market Authority (EMA), she oversees the monitoring and surveillance of the energy market and further development of the energy market to promote effective competition. She also works on new market developments, for example the regulatory framework to facilitate the adoption of new energy options and measures to encourage consumer choice.

EMA is a statutory board under the Ministry of Trade and Industry. EMA's main goals are to ensure a reliable and secure energy supply, promote effective competition in the energy market and develop a dynamic energy sector in Singapore.
